To Whom It May Concern:

It has been my pleasure to be associated with McGee Home Builders, Inc. and specifically Mr. Matt McGee. We started our new home construction after carefully reviewing various builders' products and speaking to a number of real estate professionals to gather information on which builder to go with, after careful consideration, we chose McGee Home Builders.

Our home project was unusual in that a lot of our correspondence took place from Anchorage, Alaska and Matt gave us peace of mind with prompt responses (despite our 4 hour time difference) and sound advice as the project evolved. This was our first new construction project and Matt made this opportunity insightful and pleasant with his can do approach, southern hospitality and sincere desire to see us satisfied.

One of the many impressive aspects of working with McGee Home Builders was our ability to be involved every step of the way and Matt's willingness to accept and incorporate our requested changes as we progressed throughout this process. Matt never made us feel like our changes were a hindrance and was very accommodating to our requests.

I had the opportunity to interface with several of Matt's vendors and employee's and everyone I spoke with had a mutual respect for their association with McGee Home Builders, this only added value to our own experience and relationship with Matt.

McGee Home Builders completed our home in less time then was originally stated and made the final walk through process seem effortless as he has diligently endeavored to take care of the very few items that were left to complete the quality assurance portion of our home and subsequent closing on our new home.

In summary, you will not find a builder whose craftsmanship, partnership and relationship can be surpassed and you will be absolutely delighted with your quality new home. I highly recommend McGee Home Builders; his finished product will speak for itself.

With Warmest Regards,
